The Illusion of Being Ready

SCRIPTURE

"Therefore be ye also ready: for in such an hour as ye think not the Son of man cometh." — Matthew 24:44 (KJV)

DEVOTIONAL

We frequently hear the narrative that we are living in the end times. Most of us believe that Jesus is coming soon, and therefore, we know we ought to get ready. We can study the prophecies, quote the three angels' messages, and understand the geopolitical landscape perfectly. We can preach eloquent sermons about the mark of the beast and the antichrist. We can know all of this better than any other group of people and still be completely unready.

Jesus warned His disciples to "watch and pray." Yet, in His darkest hour in the Garden of Gethsemane, His most loyal followers fell fast asleep. They did not realize they were sleeping. That is the danger of spiritual slumber—when you are asleep, you do not know you are asleep. It is only when you are awake that you realize your previous condition. Many in the church today believe they are wide awake because they possess an intellectual knowledge of prophecy, when in reality, they are fast asleep regarding their true spiritual condition.

What does it actually mean to be ready? It goes far beyond knowing what is coming; it is about preparing our characters. It's about having the Father's "name" in our foreheads.

Like the devastating tsunami in 2004, the warning signs are all around us. The tide is receding. But knowing a wave is coming will not save you if you do not know how to run to higher ground.

Do not mistake intellectual knowledge for spiritual readiness. Today, ask the Lord to wake you up. Seek the higher ground of a transformed heart, so that the day of His coming will not overtake you as a thief.

PRAYER

Lord, I confess that I often confuse knowing about the end times with actually being ready for them. Wake me up from my spiritual slumber. Help me to watch and pray, that I might be found truly ready when You return. Amen.

DISCUSSION QUESTIONS

1. Why is readiness more than knowing the signs of Christ's coming?

2. Read Matthew 25:1–13. How does this passage deepen today's understanding of God's work in our lives?

3. What would it look like for you to identify one area where spiritual preparation is being neglected?

Preparing to Face, Not to Flee

SCRIPTURE

"For then shall be great tribulation, such as was not since the beginning of the world to this time, no, nor ever shall be." — Matthew 24:21 (KJV)

DEVOTIONAL

When we read about the coming time of trouble, human nature naturally recoils. We do not like hardship, persecution, or discomfort. Because of this, a very specific narrative has developed within the Christian world regarding how to prepare for the end. The prevailing thought is that we must become "preppers." We need to get out of debt, stockpile food, find an off-grid water source, install solar panels, and maybe even build a bunker.

While there is profound wisdom in practical preparation and country living, but if our motives are selfish, if we are preparing to save ourselves then our all of those things will be in vain. If our primary goal in preparing is simply to ensure that we live comfortably while the rest of the world suffers, we have completely missed the Spirit of Christ. Think about it: if Jesus possessed that self-preserving mentality, He would have never left Heaven. He would have looked down at our suffering world and said, "At least I am safe."

Our preparation must not be rooted in a desire to hide. We must ask ourselves a probing question: Are we preparing to flee persecution, or are we preparing to face it?

The greatest testimonies of faith do not come from people who successfully hid from trouble; they come from those who faced unimaginable difficulty with supernatural grace. The coming crisis will bring the toughest living conditions humanity has ever seen, but it will also be the most triumphant time for the church. It will be the hour of the greatest outpouring of the Holy Spirit.

Do not let fear drive your preparation. We are not called to preserve our comfort; we are called to preserve our witness. Ask God to shift your focus from self-preservation to self-sacrifice, so that when the storm hits, you are ready to shine.

PRAYER

Father, forgive me when my desire to prepare for the future is driven by selfishness and fear. Deliver me from the idol of comfort. Prepare my heart not just to survive the coming storm, but to be a powerful witness for You in the midst of it. Amen.

The Danger of the Crowd

SCRIPTURE

"Then went the Pharisees, and took counsel how they might entangle him in his talk." — Matthew 22:15 (KJV)

DEVOTIONAL

There is a prevailing attitude today that if we just stay in the right denomination, sit in the right building, and hold the right set of doctrinal beliefs, we will be safe. When doctrinal disputes arise, our default solution is to call a committee, gather the leaders, and "study it out" together. We rely heavily on the counsel of men to figure out what is true.

But history gives us a stark warning about placing our ultimate trust in human councils. In the fourth century, the Council of Nicaea was convened by a Roman Emperor to settle a theological dispute. It resulted in shouting, torn papers, physical altercations, and the first time a civil penalty was issued for a doctrinal disagreement. Truth was ultimately decided by whoever had the most political power at the moment.

We see this same pattern in the Bible. Almost every time the religious leaders "took counsel" together, it was to figure out a way to destroy Jesus.

We do not need another general council; we need the Counselor. The Holy Spirit is the true guide of the church. The safety of your soul cannot be outsourced to a pastor, a committee, or a church manual. You are individually accountable to God.

In AD 70, when the Roman army was destroying Jerusalem, there were people standing in the burning temple claiming, "God will save us because we are in His church!" They clung to the structure instead of the substance, and they perished. Do not cling to the structure. Look to Jesus Christ for yourself.

PRAYER

Lord, I confess that it is easier to let others do my thinking for me. Forgive me for trusting in human councils and religious structures more than Your Holy Spirit. Teach me to study Your Word for myself and to trust the Counselor above all else. Amen.

Your Reaction is Your Sermon

SCRIPTURE

"Who, when he was reviled, reviled not again; when he suffered, he threatened not; but committed himself to him that judgeth righteously:" — 1 Peter 2:23 (KJV)

DEVOTIONAL

It has often been said that if you want to know a person's true character, do not look at how they act; look at how they react. It is easy to put on a holy act when the bills are paid, the sun is shining, and everyone at church is treating you well. But how do you react when you lose your job? How do you react when someone slanders your name, or when a person is rude to you in public?

People rarely listen to what we say, but they constantly watch what we do. You can preach eloquent doctrines to your neighbors all day long, but if they see you lose your temper over a property line, your words mean nothing.

Think of Jesus standing before the high priest. The rabid religious leaders were hurling false accusations, screaming insults, and gnashing their teeth at Him. How did Jesus react? He stood there in complete silence and profound peace. That silence was one of the loudest sermons ever preached. His response revealed the character of a kingdom that the world could not understand.

God allows us to go through trials and disappointments precisely because our reaction to those difficulties is the greatest witness we can ever give. When you endure a trial with a cheerful, trusting attitude, the world takes notice. The most amazing testimonies are often silent. Today, pay close attention to your reactions. Let your patience under pressure be the undeniable proof that Christ lives inside you.

PRAYER

Jesus, my human nature constantly wants to react in anger, defense, and frustration. When I am wronged or squeezed by circumstances, let the peace of Heaven spill out of me. Make my reactions a silent but powerful sermon of Your grace to those watching. Amen.

The Risk of Hearing His Voice

SCRIPTURE

"And when he putteth forth his own sheep, he goeth before them, and the sheep follow him: for they know his voice." — John 10:4 (KJV)

DEVOTIONAL

What does it mean to truly hear the voice of God? For many of us, we limit God's voice to theological epiphanies. We read a Bible verse, realize we previously misunderstood it, and say, "God showed me the truth!" While doctrinal clarity is important, hearing God's voice is meant to be deeply personal, incredibly practical, and often highly risky.

I once listened to a powerful testimony of a Christian police officer who prayed to hear God’s voice in his daily work. One day, he arrested a man for assaulting an officer. While driving to the precinct, God distinctly told him to let the man go. This went against every protocol. It risked his career, his reputation among his peers, and human logic. But the officer obeyed. He let the man go. The next day, that same man gave his life to Christ, called the precinct and provided information that led to a massive drug bust.

Faith is not just agreeing with a list of biblical facts; faith is risky. It requires courage. Abraham followed God's voice by faith and left his home without any plan or knowledge of where he was going. Sometimes obeying God's voice means stepping way out of your comfort zone.

If we are going to be prepared for the end, we must develop a relationship with God where we can hear His voice clearly for ourselves and have the courage to obey. A YouTube preacher cannot tell you what to do in a split-second crisis. The church manual cannot give you real-time directions. You must know the voice of the Shepherd. What is God prompting you to do today that feels uncomfortable? Trust Him, and take the step of faith.

PRAYER

Father, I want a relationship with You that goes beyond mere theological facts. I want to hear Your voice guiding my daily, practical decisions. Give me the courage to obey You, even when it feels risky and goes against my own human logic. Amen.

Disrupting the Narrative

SCRIPTURE

"And all the people were amazed, and said, Is not this the son of David?" — Matthew 12:23 (KJV)

DEVOTIONAL

We live in a world where people do not actually want the truth; they want a narrative. A narrative is a crafted story designed to manipulate how people think. During His earthly ministry, the religious leaders realized they could not defeat Jesus with truth, so they created a false narrative about Him. They labeled Him a Sabbath-breaker, a blasphemer, a glutton, a winebibber, and a friend of sinners. They claimed He cast out demons by the prince of demons.

How did Jesus fight back against this overwhelming smear campaign? He did not call a press conference. He did not spend all His time arguing with the Pharisees. He disrupted the narrative by how He lived.

In Matthew 12, after being accused of being demon-possessed, Jesus quietly healed a man who was blind and mute. The people watched the unselfish, life-giving power of Christ, and they were amazed, asking, "Is not this the son of David?" His actions completely exposed the lies of the religious leaders. The people realized their pastors were lying to them because they watched the life of Jesus.

In the final days of earth's history, the devil is going to create a global, terrifying narrative against God’s commandment-keeping people. The world may misunderstand and misrepresent them, but the way they respond to those accusations must reveal the character of Christ.

PRAYER

Lord Jesus, You endured the false narratives of this world with perfect grace. When people misunderstand or misrepresent me, keep me from bitter arguments. Help me to disrupt the lies of the enemy through a life of undeniable, unselfish love and service. Amen.

Sabbath Summary & Reflection

SCRIPTURE

"Let your light so shine before men, that they may see your good works, and glorify your Father which is in heaven." — Matthew 5:16 (KJV)

SABBATH REFLECTION

This week, we have explored the profound call to Disrupt the Narrative. We learned that true readiness for the end times is an illusion if we only possess intellectual knowledge while our hearts are spiritually asleep. We confronted the carnal desire to prepare just to live comfortably, realizing Christ calls us to face persecution, not flee it. We saw the danger of trusting in the group-think of human councils, and we were challenged to make our daily reactions our loudest sermon. Finally, we learned that the only way to defeat the false narratives of the enemy is through a life of unselfish, undeniable service.

As we enter the Sabbath rest, we are given a sanctuary in time to evaluate our true condition. The Sabbath is not just a doctrinal argument; it is a practical demonstration that we trust God's voice above the systems and narratives of the world.

Reflect: Have you been trying to argue people into the truth this week, or have you been demonstrating the truth through acts of selfless service?

Evaluate: If a crisis hit your life tomorrow, would your default reaction be panic and self-preservation, or peace and self-sacrifice? Do you know the voice of the Shepherd well enough to follow Him in the dark?

The Invitation: As you enter a new week, the call is to Be the Disruption. The world does not need more eloquent debaters; it needs living, breathing demonstrations of the character of Christ.

Practical Application: Next week, when you encounter someone who is difficult, rude, or operating under a false narrative about you, do not defend yourself with words. Defend the character of God by performing a tangible act of kindness for that very person. Disrupt their narrative with love.

PRAYER

Lord of the Sabbath, I praise You for Your unselfish life that disrupted the darkness of this world. I lay down my arguments and my desire for self-preservation today. Fill me with Your Holy Spirit. Give me the courage to hear Your voice, to face the future without fear, and to disrupt the narrative of the enemy through a life of perfect love. In Jesus' name, Amen.
